WINNERS

BEST MEDIA ROOM ▲ SATURDAY NIGHT FEVER (and Sunday, Monday...)

With a dance floor, karaoke machine, and high definition picture and sound, this award-winning media room makes Studio 54 look like a library

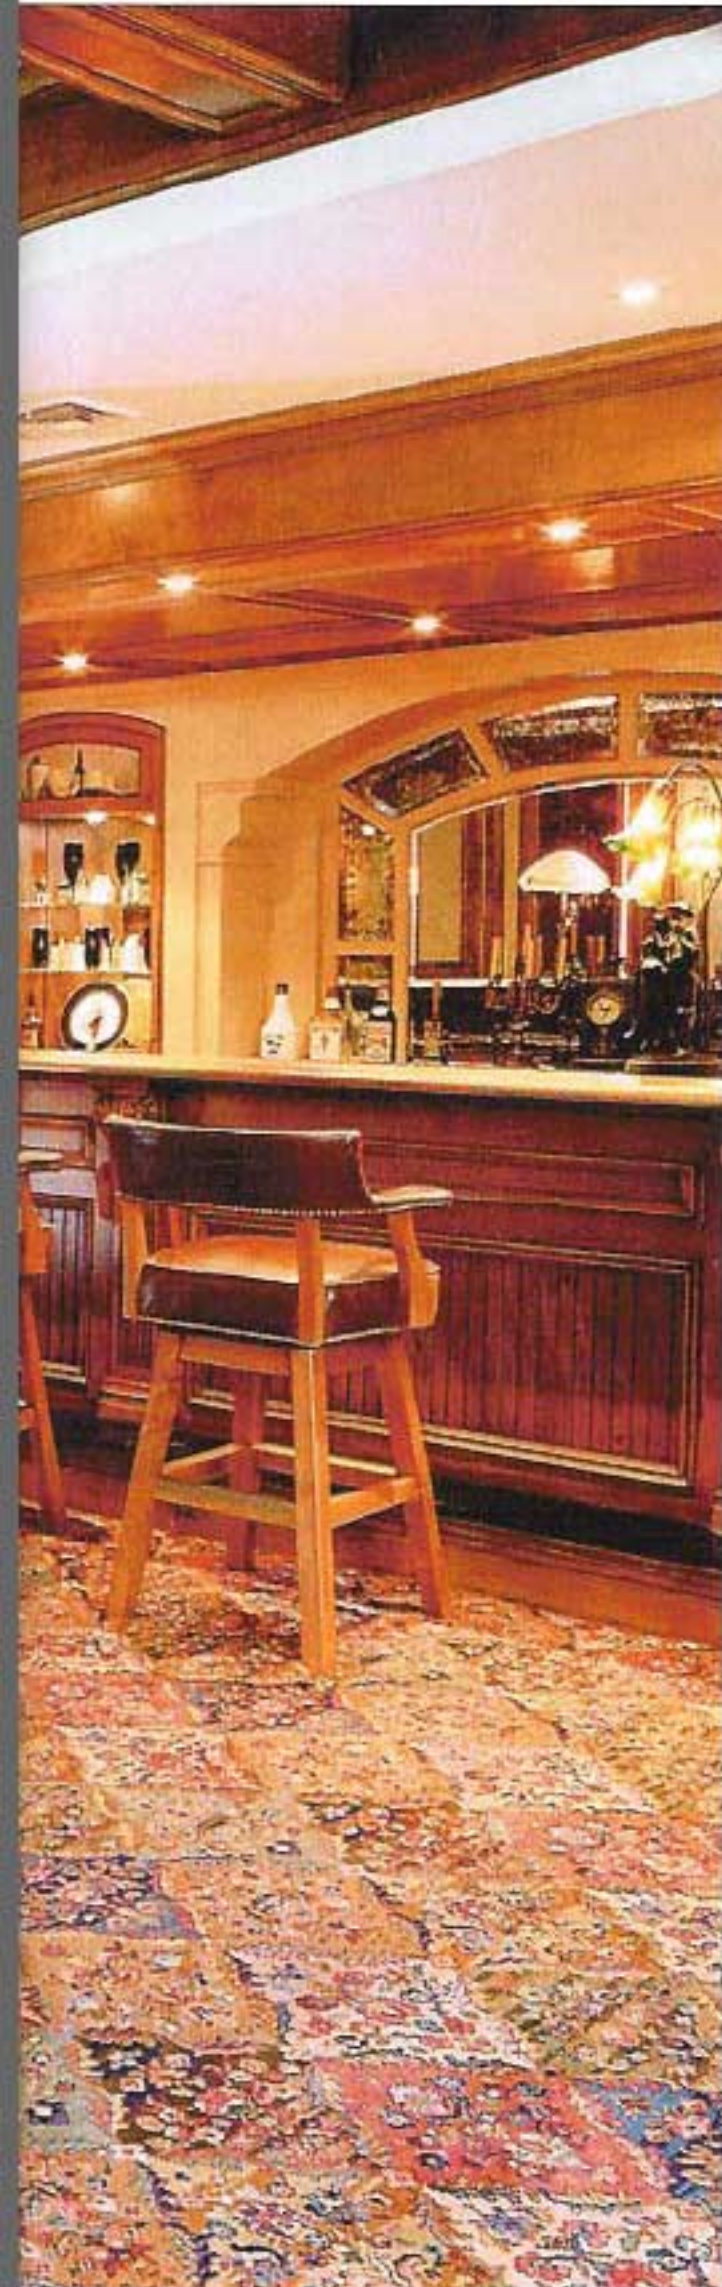

AUDIO/VIDEO DESIGN & INSTALLATION BY ELECTRONICS DESIGN GROUP, INC.

Three-time award winner (see Best Home Theater Level V & Best Hidden Installation), Electronics Design Group (EDG) of Piscataway, New Jersey helped to create the ultimate party room complete with dancing, karaoke, games, a full bar and, of course, movies. Crank up the JBL Synthesis Home Cinema/Music System or the Pioneer karaoke player and the parquet dance floor becomes Studio 54.

However, it's not all boogie nights in this room—that is, unless the homeowners are watching Boogie Nights on the 110-inch Stewart screen. Paired with a Sony G-90 projector, the video system receives DVD, LD, karaoke, and Dish Network satellite. Speakers surround the eight-foot screen, and motorized curtains add even more color and drama. Easily controlled with one button of the AMX touchpanel, the clients can achieve a 4:3 ratio by adjusting the curtain to different settings. For more mellow nights in front of the tube, EDG installed two 32-inch Sony direct view sets on each side of the screen.

The JBL Synthesis 3 system fills the room with crisp, clear sound and rich bass for movie tracks or those impromptu dance parties. The equipment rack is located to the right of the screen and has convenient rear access via a closet door. The rack also has feeds from the multi-room rack for source distribution.

This media room is a retreat for its happy owners and their guests who often take turns on the regulation pool table, air hockey and foosball table. When the party's over, the only downside is figuring out how to politely ask folks to go home.
